MOMENTUM 2005

mo-men-tum n 1: an impelling force or strength

MOMENTUM 2005

2005 is a time of movement. A time of opportunity. A time of momentum.

As social change philanthropists, we face a profound challenge. In 2004, we have seen a nation divided against itself, legislating discrimination across the country and stifling the voice of many.

But we have also seen unprecedented success in cross-issue alliances and new organizing technologies. We have seen greater-than-ever contributions to civic participation and voter turnout. And we have seen new and growing unity among activists working for fairness and freedom.

The question is: How do we use this complex moment? How do we sustain this momentum?

JOIN US THIS FEBRUARY

Donors from ten progressive networks and key actors in the social justice movement will engage in a critical conversation about the evolution of social change.

Contribute to the dialogue. Help define the future of the movement. Seize the momentum.
